Comments and recommendations of the reviewer:

The article discusses a relevant issue of informality/formality expressed by Spanish personal pronouns, especially relevant for English-speaking persons, as there is no such distinction in English. Findings are convincing but should be continued with regard to territorial varieties of Spanish. Word usage and misprints in some parts of the article should be corrected.

Recommendation:

for unconditional publication / for publication with discussion notes / for publication after revision / for unconditional refusal of publication.
